No where in the Bible are sponsors or Godparents mentioned. However, over the years, the church found it was helpful to have people often called witnesses, sponsors, Godparents, or mentors for those who were new in faith. Many have continued that optional tradition selecting one or more people who will assist those being baptized in their faith development (i.e. praying for them, sharing their faith stories with them, and leading a Godly example). They are not the same as legal guardians, though parents may chose the same people for that role.
